IMPROVE.

EMPOWER.

RENEW.

Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) is a neurobiological condition of impaired attention regulation and impulsivity; it occurs with or without hyperactivity. ADHD can impact a person socially, emotionally, cognitively, and behaviorally.

Symptoms of ADHD:

- Not following through on tasks and projects
- Lack of attention to detail, careless mistakes
- Difficulty concentrating and listening
- Impulsive decisions
- Poor organization, losing items
- Missed obligations
- Poor time awareness
- Chronic procrastination
- Forgetful in daily activities
- Easily distracted
- Language processing problems

Improve life skills:

- Focus and working memory
- Managing distractions
- Understanding diagnosis and symptoms
- Study or work strategies
- Self-monitoring for impulsivity
- Time management, balance life's demands
- Routines
 - Sleep, meals, medications, home, and work
- Decision making
- Listening, reading, and writing
- Executive functioning
 - Planning, organization, initiation, and completion
